You actually need to come in to our office to setup your account. And don't forget to bring two forms of ID, and your....

Yea, that's not happenin'.

Your primary concern when it comes to accessing patient data online is security, and rightfully so. For both compliance and risk mitigating purposes, electronic patient health information security is a paramount concern.

However, that doesn't mean that you have to build a data security process that is so convoluted and cumbersome that patients aren't able to use it.

With Redde, we can help you balance security with usability. Our unique account linking processes provide an automated and compliant solution for patients to access their health information online.

You're welcome!
